

Peppermint Innovation innovates in Philippines with creative fin-tech trial

Matt Birney | Tuesday, 2 May, 2017 - 06:18

The company said the Metro Gas Agent APP trial would last for up to three months after which the company would aim for a full-scale commercial deployment of the system, with revenues at that point to be derived on a per-transaction basis and shared between the parties.

In Monday's update, the company described The Metro Gas pilot as a significant step in the roll out of its offering in the Philippines, which is already being used by a number of commercial banks in the east Asian nation.

Peppermint CEO Chris Kain said: "We're really pleased to now be in pilot phase with our partner Metro Gas and are excited by the potential this has to expand our distribution in the Philippines.

"We continue to focus on identifying additional established networks in the Philippines and look to expand our footprint with new distribution partners."

Company management is bullish about the potential of its highly mobile, non-bank, bill payments and money transfer solution, particularly in light of estimates that suggest Filipinos make about 2.5 billion payments per month, corresponding to a value of over US$74 billion.

Peppermint Innovation joined the ASX's fintech sector in 2015 after a successful $3.87 million capital raising.

The company said the Metro Gas Agent APP trial would last for up to three months after which the company would aim for a full-scale commercial deployment of the system, with revenues at that point to be derived on a per-transaction basis and shared between the parties.

In Monday's update, the company described The Metro Gas pilot as a significant step in the roll out of its offering in the Philippines, which is already being used by a number of commercial banks in the east Asian nation.

Peppermint CEO Chris Kain said: "We're really pleased to now be in pilot phase with our partner Metro Gas and are excited by the potential this has to expand our distribution in the Philippines.

"We continue to focus on identifying additional established networks in the Philippines and look to expand our footprint with new distribution partners."

Company management is bullish about the potential of its highly mobile, non-bank, bill payments and money transfer solution, particularly in light of estimates that suggest Filipinos make about 2.5 billion payments per month, corresponding to a value of over US$74 billion.

Peppermint Innovation joined the ASX's fintech sector in 2015 after a successful $3.87 million capital raising.